

unilateral—who will effect more mischief than himself. I fear that before the present crisis is over developments will take place, illustrating the consequences as well as force of my remarks on this subject.

The Committee has made progress to-day, considering the amount of talk indulged in, and a good deal of liberty has been shown in the votes upon the items of the Civil and Diplomatic bill taken in Committee. On an amendment proposed by Mr. Johnson of Ark. providing a salary of $2,000 for the Surveyor General of the Public Lands in his State, there was quite a "spree" between the rampant Arkansas and the thoroughly wretched Ohio. Mr. CARTER, of Ohio, made a forcible onslaught upon the "plan" made by Mr. Johnson, and the Arkansas plan was asked to be increased. Arkansas got wrath, and fairly boiled over with rage. He flew to the floor and looked "boothpiss," first at Ohio, and then at the Chairman, who hammered him to order! Arkansas muttered that he would not suffer Ohio's imputations about "plunder"—taking it as personal, of course. But Ohio said Arkansas would have to take it, whether he liked or not, and then came an avalanche of denunciation, which got up a good hearty laugh at Arkansas' expense. Friends whispered to Arkansas that it was foolish and useless to "take on" among whom was that embodiment of fatherly placidity, Gov. McDowell, who sits near, and a face of a decidedly thunderpelt cast soon wore a gentler smile, and the Arkansas work was got off without danger of either pistol or toothpick.

There was no disposition to delay or defeat the Civil and Diplomatic bill to-day. At the present rate of progress, a couple of three days at most will carry the bill through. Then will come the struggle over the question of precedence, growing out of slavery, concerning the Senate bill.

CITY ITEMS.

INDUSTRIAL CONGRESS.—On the motion of Mr. P. E. Day, at the session of the Congress on Tuesday, the American Industrial Union was denounced, and the friends of Labor cautioned against it. He also proposed that a Committee of three be appointed to consider the best mode of establishing an Association for protecting the labor of the Seamstresses, and the organization of a Seamstresses' Cooperative Union.

These charges against the American Industrial Union, and the proposition to start a Seamstresses' Cooperative Store were referred to a special committee of three, P. E. Day, Chas. McCarthy, and D. O. Henderson.

We omitted the above in our report of the Workers' Congress, yesterday, and also the fact of the adoption of Mr. Pond's Report and Resolution for Cooperative Trade Union Stores, and a lengthy and interesting discussion on the harmony of capital with labor, resulting in the presentation of the views of the Jewellers.
